1.Why Study CIMA?

"Becoming a Chartered (Management) Accountant is South Africa's best kept career secret!

Straight from matric or university, over 2-4 years, you can "Become Your Vision: A Chartered Global Management Accountant" (CGMA) and be invited to membership of South Africa's and the world's largest, most prestigious and sought-after professional body of Management Accountants -the Chartered Institute of Management Accountants (CIMA). What's more? With an NQF L7 qualification, you can convert to CA(SA) whilst keeping your CGMA designation by meeting the terms of the SAICA-CIMA Membership Pathway Agreement (MPA).

As a CIMA student or CGMA, your job prospects in South Africa and Internationally are pretty good at all levels and sectors, ranging from roles such as Accounts Assistant, Debtors/Creditors Controller, Cost Accountant, Financial Accountant, Management Accountant, Business Analyst, Finance Business Partner, Management Consultant, Risk Manager, Project Auditor/Manager, Operations Manager, and Finance Manager; to senior executive roles such as Chief Financial Officer (CFO), Chief Executive Officer (CEO) -or Managing Director.

CIMA is a professional rather than academic qualification; and it is SAQA-registered at NQF 8. An academic qualification (-typically a certificate, diploma or degree) is issued by a tertiary institution (e.g. a university), to certify your theoretical knowledge, without regard as to your ethical compass and actual competency to apply that knowledge in the real-world. A professional qualification on the other hand, is generally issued by a globally-renowned professional body (CIMA- in this case), to confirm your theoretical knowledge, ethical compass as well as your actual ability (competency) to professionally apply that knowledge at work; uniquely verified through a set of progressively rigorous professional exams, case studies (simulations) and practical work experience. This distinction is crucial as it explains why employers prefer professional qualifications: although paradoxically, many mistakenly still choose to pursue academic rather than professional qualifications..

As outlined on the next page, only CharterQuest combines your CIMA Fulltime exam-focused tuition and the required practical work experience opportunities, to secure your employability upon graduation!"
